

Georgia Structural Pest Control Commission
Cheating Policy

October 9, 2007

It shall be the policy of the Georgia Structural Pest Control Commission that anyone found to be cheating, by any member of the Commission, employee of the Department of Agriculture's Structural Pest Control Section, or any proctor administering an examination on behalf of the Commission, during the taking of any examination offered by the Commission shall not be permitted to complete said examination and shall forfeit all fees associated with the examination. Further, such individual shall not be permitted to take any examination offered by the Commission for a period of one year from the date of said occurrence. In addition, the person found to be cheating shall be required to appear before the Commission prior to being approved to take any examination to provide the Commission with assurances that such occurrence will not be repeated.

Anyone found to be cheating a second time shall not be permitted to take any examination for a period of 5 years from the date of the second occurrence. In addition, the person found to be cheating shall again be required to appear before the Commission prior to being approved to take any examination to provide the Commission with assurances that such occurrence will not be repeated.
